

Launching the new RoadPro Truck Hub Seals

Truckline are pleased to announce another new product to its expanding RoadPro range. RoadPro Hub Seals offer the optimum sealing solution for every type of truck wheel original equipment fitment application, or maintenance application.

Truckline's General Manager Peter Kaspar says the introduction of the RoadPro Truck Hub Seal is an important addition to the RoadPro range of products. The complete range is as per OE construction but with the superior Hydrogenated Nitrile lip material. They are also suitable for oil or grease applications.

"The RoadPro Hub Seal range is a one piece design with internal sealing lips, and all with the superior HNBR material to offer the extra ability to keep contaminants out, and the bearing lubrication in for maximum protection. The RoadPro range also offers higher rated surface speed, higher wear resistance, better tear resistance and an extended temperature range limit," said Peter.

"All Seals are manufactured to full QA ISO 9001:2000 certification and come with a full factory backed warranty. Each RoadPro Seal is lasered with a batch number, giving customers the peace of mind that they are not only purchasing a quality product, but one that can be traced," he said.

The RoadPro range was launched by Truckline in 2005 and it has expanded to include clutches, brake shoes, clutch brake, slack adjusters, brake chambers, air control valves and the soon to be introduced brake and cam shaft bush kits.

The Truckline team is highly skilled and dedicated to providing great products and outstanding service. With its nationwide warranty and branches in all the capitals and major regional trucking centres, Truckline plays an important role in offering a better alternative – RoadPro – quality truck and trailer parts at a more competitive price.
